Classification

- The MDOC operates 5 custody levels: I, II, IV, V, and Administrative Segregation.
- Custody levels are not directly based on the crime committed, but rather on the confinement and management levels of prisoners.
- While the length of the original sentence impacts initial custody level placement, over time all prisoners can move down to Level I or II based on their conduct.
- A prisoner's custody level is reviewed at least annually but can be adjusted at any time to address prisoner management.
- Lower custody levels have more privileges and more freedom of movement within their facility.

Special Use Beds

- In addition to Levels I-V, which are referred to as “General Population”, the MDOC operates a number of “Special Use Beds”.
- These include:
 - Intake
 - SAI
 - Different Levels of Residential Mental Health
 - Administrative Segregation
 - Temporary Segregation
 - Detention
 - Infirmary/Healthcare
 - Youthful
 - Protection
- Only prisoners who meet the qualifications for these beds may reside in them and the MDOC must maintain sufficient capacity for emerging needs within the prisoner population.

Other Considerations for Prisoner Placement

- In addition to custody level, the MDOC must consider the following when placing prisoners at a prison:
 - Mental Health Status
 - Physical Health Needs
 - Programming Needs
 - Religious Diet Needs
 - ADA Accommodation Needs
 - Special Problem Offender Notices (SPON)

The Unique Challenges of COVID-19

- Over the past two decades, one step the state took to save money was to increase the housing density of prisoners, particularly in lower-level housing units.
- During the response to COVID-19, the MDOC has worked to safely reduce the prisoner population while maintaining most of its capacity, to allow for prisoners to socially distance more easily.
- While we are optimistic about the path of COVID-19, it is far from certain when things will return to normal or what that new normal will look like.
- Maintaining operational flexibility until COVID-19 is no longer a threat is imperative.
